The sky was perfect blue Me and you with new beginning One and one made two All we knew is that we had each other A gentle lavender, on my face what a gorgeous feeling You took me up so high felt so free when the walls of ceilings for every way my emotions have gone there's a shade that goes along your painting of me light the canvases your portrait my song

went through so many changes (changes) don't know how i became this (became this) there's a different shade for all that we've been through these are my colours for you i'm trying to think back to what i was before you (before you)
but for every turn, a different hue

so the seasons go brightly so with prepare for changes a certain change in tint there were hints while the brightness faded Appear a perfect sky Shadowed by the remainings of pain once so beautiful and perfect blue nows it's all in grey

a mixture of these colours product of your encounter everything you put in me is now manifesting the lavendars the blues the greys and yellows too have all gone in to what you see standing here before you

(x2)
