Florence:

Well we can't complain that you've been ignored by the press.

Freddie:

What they say? What they say?

Florence:

They're not to polite

Freddie:

They say I'm a shit?

Florence:

Well, yes. They pulled you to pieces. In five different languages. The Times: "You thrive on unpleasantness." Speaks French

Freddie:

I don't believe that they can't see my game. I'm like that tennis player, what's his name? They love to hate me and for us, that's dollars.

Florence:

Speaks Russian

Freddie:

Hey, look there's a piece that some idiot's written on you. "Florence Vasse, petite, Hungarian-born personal assistant. His gentle companion" - if they only knew!

Florence:

What do you mean? I've always been gentle with you, Freddie!

Both:

"She stands by her champion."

Freddie:

I like this.

Both:

“Whose demands are so infantile”

Freddie:

I don't like this.

Florence:

If you don't like it then it's up to you. They like the Russian they could like you, too.

Freddie:

Commie newspapers! Of course the bastards all support the Russians.

Florence:

But Sergievsky seems a sweet opponent. So why do you abuse him all the time? Freddie, I love you very much, but just for once, don't go on about the Russians at the press conference, okay?
