I wish you knew what I could do
If only it weren't so hard
Trust the stage and take over the podium
And catch this crowd off guard

And in the silence, it wouldn't bother me
If the audience caught its breath
I clear my throat and adjust the microphone
And laugh myself to death

And I think sometimes it's dangerous
That we take ourselves so serious
But I think you're beautiful
I think you're beautiful

With the life, comes the issues
And everyone must obey
We wait for fate to come
And greet us and walk us through our day

And I think sometimes it's dangerous
That we take ourselves so serious
But I think you're beautiful
I think your beautiful

For every department store clerk
Who's ever followed me to make Sure that I don't steal

And every folk singer that's Gawked at the sight of me
Reality is my real
I think you're beautiful

Wake me up after the aftermath
But don't tell me what's going on
'Cause sometimes I would rather Sleep than give into my alarm

And I think sometimes it's dangerous
That we take ourselves so serious
But I think you're beautiful

I think you're beautiful
