I changed my name, I had it made
I sold my soul and I never got paid

When it's one long line after another
You can't get a green card
And all you want is to lie with your lover
And the distance makes it too hard

What you don't know is
What you don't know is
You can never go back, never go back
You can never go home again
You can never go back, never go back
Never go, you can never go home again

When it's one headache after another
You can't get a green light
And all you want is to lie with your lover
Make everything alright, alright

What you don't know is
What you don't know is
You can never go back, never go back
You can never go home again
You can never go back, never go back
Never go, never go home again

I'm going home despite
That Thomas Wolfe was right
And I'm going home despite
That Thomas Wolfe was right

And I'm going home despite
That Thomas Wolfe was right
I'm going home despite
That Thomas Wolfe was right

I dreamed, I jumped, spoke to God
I over slept and I got fired from my job
