Dark pines, the moonlit road
Winter time, the crunch of snow
I wonder will you smile show
That love is making its way back home

Love is making its way back home
Love is making its way back home
Love is making its cold weary way back home

And when it's finally real clear
We won't ask what it had seen
It won't say and we won't care
Where it's traveling the in-between

Love is making its way back home
Love is making its way back home
Love is making its cold weary way back home
To you and me

So keep on, keep on, keep on Leave it if you can, you can leave it 'lone
Hold on, hold on, hold on
Just because it's gone, don't mean it's gone for long

All the jazz you've heard is true
Love is patient and love can burn
And it won't ask to be excused
And it won't ask if it can please return

Some will tell you that it's a myth
Try to say it don't exist
We'll shake our heads (?)
When it's finally standing in our midst, yea

Love is making its way back home
Love is making its way back home
Love is making its cold weary way back home
Love is making its way back home
Love is making its way back home
Love is making its cold weary way back home
To you and me

Keep on, keep on, keep on, keep on
Keep on, keep on, keep on, keep on
Keep on, keep on, keep on, keep on
Keep on, keep on, keep on, keep on
Hold on, hold on, hold on
