I watch the light fall on your face
Roll down like water
Off your neck and to your arms
I wish I couldn't see you smile
Wish you were still in the darkness
When the night could still be ours

I've never seen your hair this way
Across the pillow, across your blue-green eyes
I wish that this is where they'd stay
Get lost in your world if you'd get lost in mine

So far away from anyone who'd ever care
At least the two of us don't mind
And if they dared interfere
Rage and love and both of us are blind

I hear the bell man on the stairs
Suitcases carry-ons he'll carry on his way
Your stare, the color of your hair
No one can valet, they're in my heart to stay

And when you're back in the arms where you belong
Please tell him congratulations
If he ever wants to leave the perfect girl
Believe me, I'll be waiting
