

Joshua Kadison "Invisible Man"

Visit "Invisible Man" on MotoLyrics.com

Woke up this morning with a funny feeling,
wasn't really sure what it was all about.
But it felt like I was disappearing,
so I ran to the mirror to check it out.
I said, "Here I am, here I am, here I am
...but why do I feel like the invisible man?"
I stumbled back into the bedroom,
and stared up at the rising sun.
Then I heard my self shout out the window,
not really talking to anyone,
I yelled, "Here I am, here I am, here I am
...but why do I feel like the invisivle man?"
Lights went on, people started yelling,
"Will the crazy man go back to bed."
And there I was, laughing out my window,
feeling much better now, somebody heard what I said.
Well it's no big thing, no revelation,
no answer to all these lives we lead.
But I think I do know one thing:
Sometimes I think we all need to say,

"Here I am, here I am, here I am."
when life makes us feel like the invisible man?
Lights went on, people started yelling,
"Will the crazy man go back to bed."
And there I was, laughing out my window,
feeling mu ch better now, somebody hear what I said.
Woke up this morning with a funny feeling,
wasn't really sure what it was all about.
But it felt like I was disappearing,
so I ran to the mirror to check it out.
I said, "Here I am, here I am, here I am
...but why do I feel like the invisible man?
Oh, here I am, here I am, here I am
...but sometimes I feel like the invisible,
here I am, here I am, here I am
...but why do I feel like the invisible man?"
