What if I let myself fall
What if the stars don't agree
Would the world stop, or would it spin round without us
Would it spin around you without me
Well our heroes have all been traded in Can't think of what they used to be
So we look round and pray for salvation
While they search for a light out at sea
So we take, one, leap, for the bottom
And I pray your hope's not forgotten
And it's too much to say
I need you this way
But tomorrow, you're already, gone
And I can't move on
I talk to you
In my mind while I lie down,
I wish you could hear all the words you'd said without knowing

They've traveled the world in my ears
As I take, one, leap, for the bottom
And I pray that your hopes not forgotten
And it's too much too say
I need you this way
For tomorrow, you're already, gone
And I have to move on

And I've never known of a world where someone like me could fall down
To only be caught don't know, you turned on the light and
Now I can see
So I take one, leap, for the bottom
And i, know, that your hope's long forgotten
And it's too much to say
I need you this way
But tomorrow you're already gone

And I have to move on
