

Judith Owen

"Classic"

Visit "Classic" on MotoLyrics.com

Baby, don't cry now. you ask me just like always That time we found a pure white memory, the commotion
Baby, hold me now, I'm trembling.
So we don't break this memory, more shy than yesterday

The rain has lifted, only the path
With light drying it, swaying quietly remains

How many times have our kisses piled up, as fragile as glass
A love that can't sleep has no where to go, lost in heaven

In a straight line we go into the evening
Make a shadow, stretching out, crying a little

If this warm miracle blows through my chest
The flow of time and flow of water will stop
The person I love will have a trembling memory
And keep going forever into a dream

Let's make a promise, never to forget it
Baby, classic blue tears are overflowing

If this warm miracle blows through my chest
Just like this here, gently the two of us
To my lover the trembling memory is still alive
If the wind still blows strong in this town
It will beautifully paint those painful days the color of sky
The person I love will have a trembling thought
And keep going forever into a dream

Visit Judith Owen page on MotoLyrics.com, to get more lyrics and videos.