VOYAGER by Judy Collins

Across the dark water we came, you and I,
With songs to sing.
Across the wide valleys and under the stars,
We were wandering.

Watching the eagle(s) climb to the sky
Counting the seasons as they flew by
Telling each other dreams that would never die.

Across the white mountains, we climbed you and I
Our steps entwined.
And under the moon's light we knew we were bound
In heart and mind.

Catching the shining trout in the sun
Heaven was here, and we'd just begun
Sharing our dreams and knowing they'd all come true.

Morning came one day
And you were gone.
Voyager of Light
Walk with me
Don't ever leave me now.
Light the darkest night
Light the darkest night.

The sun is still shining, the stars are so bright
And you are here.
Behind the rain falling, the nightingale's calling
From far to near.

On the horizon, I see you go by
In the still nights I know longer ask why
All of my life I see you clear as light.

Morning comes today, and you are here.
Voyager of Light.
Walk with me, don't ever leave me now.
Light the darkest night.

Light the darkest night.
