Here she comes
With her girlfriends
Walking in circles
making their way
hand in hand

When she plays
with her girlfriends
she's one in a million
coming again and again

(Do do doo, do do do, etc.)

(Chorus)

We still love you, Lucy
you know I do
We still love you Lucy
I know I do

When she laughs
with her girlfriends
you know its a true love
a true love that's so innocent

when she smiles
with her girlfriends
i'll always remember the smile that I'll never forget

(Do do doo, do do do, etc.)

(Chorus)

We still love you, Lucy
you know I do
We still love you Lucy
I know I do

(repeat)

Don't let the world be cruel
Because I love you
We'll see you soon

(Do do doo, do do do, etc.) (X2)

we're not the same
and people change
we're not the change
so find yourself
find yourself

We still love you, Lucy
you know I do
We still love you Lucy
I know I do
(repeat X5)

We still love you Lucy
You know I do
(repeat X7)

Submitter's comments:Â

This is the homage Julian did for his girl friend when he was in kindergarden: Lucy O'Donnell. She inspired "Lucy in the Sky With Diamonds" to John Lennon as his son (little Julian) showed him a drawing he did for her then. She died from lupus and Julian was touched by how that disease has a cruel way to kill. He does a lot now for his foundation () which help lupus foundations but not only as it follows the steps of "Peace and Love for the Earth" mood of John Lennon.
