Iâ€™ve been waiting for you, my dear Iâ€™ve been waiting for you over valleys and mountains it helps to keep counting the days and last night felt kind of strange, my dear last night felt kind of strange all those blankets and sheets and those lies through your teeth that i fell through and closing the doors never helped me close up the room

now iâ€™m hosting the gathering when all the men will be boys and the girls sing the chorus again and iâ€™ve been writing your name, sweet pea Iâ€™ve been writing your name on the hotel halls and all the bathroom stalls itâ€™s for you and you came to one of my shows i saw your face from the candle light glow and my fingers forgot where to push in the knots of the wood

now iâ€™m hosting the gathering
when all the men will be boys and the girls sing the chorus again, again

now iâ€™m hosting the gathering
chorus again.
and holding your hand never helped me forget the truth.
now iâ€™m hoping your right this time, and all the men will grow up and the girls start to see a new day that all the men will grow up

but all the men will be boys and the girls sing the chorus again.
