The night is cold and brilliantly clear peak after peak of glorious ice mountains rose into the doom of the darkened skies jagged crystal teeth squeezed between the depths of the jet-black fjords

The mountains lost their shapeness and became soft and blue-tingled as the great winter day which would grow on to be a dim twilight that glimmered slowly to life

Above the peaks the Polar sky flickered with the ghostly radiance of the northern light a frozen lake discharge into an equally frozen stream the cold is cruel and unforgiving like the landscape up north.
