

Carpenter Mary-Chapin "The Last Word"

Visit "The Last Word" on MotoLyrics.com

You can have it, I don't want it, and when you've got it,
I'll be gone
It won't matter what you're saying when the damage
has all been done

Can't seem to keep the faith, as if that's all I need to do I'd rather walk away than take what belongs to you

You can have it, I don't want it, and when you've got it,
I'll be gone
It won't matter what you're saying when the damage
has all been done

Some words will cut you down like you were only in the way
Why should I stand ths ground, it won't hurt as much to say

You can have it, I don't want it, and when you've got it,
I'll be gone
It won't matter what you're saying when the damage
has all been done

Sometimes we're blinded by the very thing we need to see
I finally realized that you need it more than you need me

You can have it, I don't want it, and when you've got it,
I'll be gone
It won't matter what you're saying when the damage
has all been done
The damage has all been done

Visit Carpenter Mary-Chapin page on MotoLyrics.com, to get more lyrics and videos.