Women like you know what to say
You know when to move
You know when you shouldn't stay

Women like you are never alone
They're never too fast
And careful 'cause you say so
That's what your face shows

Women like you don't need to hear it
I'll whisper through the door
'Cause you know what your heart's for
Know what your heart's for

Blind men like me can never hold on
Then it's gone
Blind men like me don't know how to behave
At all

Whenever you choose
The broken voice that I'll assume
Just creep to a crawl
And kiss me under each new moon
