Sleep in the grass in a blue field
The fireflies blinking past Orion
All sprawled out beside the bikes, the wheels still spinnin'.

I know a shortcut along the stonewall where Evergreen soldiers point their branches for a child-like mind, like yours and mine to follow.

[Chorus]
C'mon, steal me,
C'mon, steal me.

I drew a map so we can get home or maybe come back here in the summer
But I'm not sure how to draw a path to get to moonlight.

So, tonight, these stars can shine as our halos and the pine trees watch over like guardian angels,

Protecting a perfect love between twilight and all of a lifetime of yearning.

I won't be awake for much longer,
I won't be awake for much longer,
I won't be awake for much longer...
Ah...
So, Come on!

[Chorus x3]
