(How can you look into these eyes?)
How many time have you felt alone, cast out, neglected?
There's one truth
You are alone

(And tell me you're alright?)
Time is an invention of space
And with each passing moment
You distance yourself further from everything that once was close

Cause in this drive for success
We tear open these veins
And bleed ourselves into mortality

You are not eternal
And I'm sorry

(There's a whisper in the back of your brain...)

All success is
Is blue lines on white paper
Dotted with ink, blood, and tears

Where will you be
When your ink runs out, your tears run dry, your blood runs cold?
As you wonder why innocent people die
But nobody ever dies innocent

You are not eternal
And I'm sorry

Cause in this drive for success
We tear open these veins
And bleed ourselves into mortality
(I can taste the poison in your words Speaking in riddles of the serpents tongue)

How many times have you felt alone, cast out,
neglected?

There is one truth
You are alone

Time is an invention of space
And with each passing moment
You distance yourself further from everything that
once was close

It's our push for success that drives into this oblivion
But how do you measure success
When all success is
Is blue lines on white paper
Dotted with ink, blood and tears

Cause in this drive for success
We tear open these veins and bleed ourselves into mortality
Where will you be
When your ink runs out, your tears run dry, your blood
runs cold?

As you wonder why innocent people die
But nobody ever dies innocent
You are not eternal
And I'm sorry
(... Together
We will bury the sun)

You are not eternal
And I'm sorry

(If these wings won't carry me)
You are not eternal and I'm sorry
(I will bring you down
In a blaze of plain)
You are not eternal
And I'm sorry
