Slowly rising like the moon
Comes a thought in the back of your mind
And what it is no one knows
All they see is the changing of one
By those thoughts that could attain
Nothing less than shame
And all you need now is to find someone
Someone to blame

All you needed was to find a way
Find an excuse
A reason to execute
If they knew you how you felt
Or even cared to find out about
Someone besides themselves
Maybe it would all go away
Is the world to blame

Say it's not too late
Too late to change your mind
This time
Forget about your payback line
And move on
