In the evening when you're blue
You will feel me walking through you
When you're crying, that's my cue
My reminding, walking through you

When you're singing something true
I'll be listening walking through you
And those memories that you lose
I can find them walking through you

When you dance and your baby's dancing too
Then I will walk through you

In windows, in the [Incomprehensible]
There's a shadow walking through you
When you're cold, when you're cruel
That's my sorrow, walking through you

When you wake in the silence of your room
Then I will walk through you
