Lately, Iâ€™ve been taking the backroads and longways
Baby, to the places I found you before
I know it was over a long time before now
Iâ€™m just hoping you didnâ€™t let go

Some days I just wander around in our memories
Some days I canâ€™t stand to be near where youâ€™ve been
Both ways I am always aware of your presence
And Iâ€™m hoping youâ€™ll let me back in

Iâ€™m just better with you than I ever could be on my own Iâ€™m just better with you as my family, my shelter, my home

So now, as I stand in your doorway debating Should I let you know that Iâ€™m back or sit still Waiting for your kindness, your sweetness, your mercy Bridge the gap between my pride and my will

May I breathe your breath
May I drink your words like wine
May I draw you near
And even call you mine
