two o'clock
the moon is down
we say goodnight you're headed for bed across town we haven't even known each other that long but it doesn't even matter when you leave it feels all wrong

you belong with me
darlin' we belong together and every time you leave it's obvious we're still connected you live in your world and i live in mine but the collision of worlds is just a matter of time
you belong with me

now i can tell you're so afraid you've been lied to and taken for granted and treated like some kind of slave i'm not after your freedom, i'm after your heart and i know it's gonna happen and i knew it from the start what happens to people in love is some kind of mystery but what passes for love on the streets these days is a joke so when people like us finally stumble into each other we've got to hold on tight and never let go
