Yesterday I met someone...

Last night I was inspired she affected me like sunlight providing vitamins necessary for survival

Her name was a foreign sky painted in auburn her voice was the air, enveloping my back, neck and face her motion was tactful and engaging

As we said a prayer the night gave us a song and gave us a voice so we sang along

As the melody closed so did our eyes the song stole our heart rhythms though we did not die alone because we were together

Last night I became overwhelmed by the moon but it was only her full of light, full of magic, nurturing the sky

We hung on each note and rested our heads counting the question marks inside each other's eyes

I waded in, waded out of a golden ocean but left my body way back in the sea still her motion was tactful and engaging
