I must move out across the water
I may not return
I never learn
Kaleidoscope is turning me in circles
On top of these inner worlds
And you will turn
As sure as these leaves will tell our story
And the sun has set
I felt it then
Homogenous as everyone else's lives
Like a carbon copy
Can't you be more clever?

And I can't take you with me
I can't take you home
I can't take you with me
I can't take you home

Rising above the deepest water
We may not return
We never learn
Our telescope has found that there is no way
To end these cycles
I'm so sick of wasting what could be my life
There are forces here
Beyond your fear
Beyond the gravesite of you and me
So stop your crying

I took the knife to this union
Severed in a million pieces
And I played as much of a part
In this melodrama

Can't we stop right here before we make
A second, larger mistake and fall?
Can't we end what we once began?
A void even bigger than before
