"look how much has happened in such a short time" she says to him
one husband, one wife two kids, carpools and saturday rides she says, "so why am i unhappy with life?"

you race toward something you don't know what you'll find but you'll notice it
when you see it, you say there must be more out there waiting silently
you know your place
but you hate it just the same so leave before the harvest she knows that everything seems all right but surfaces can hide what's inside he says, "i love you but i'm reflecting less light than when i was a child of the night"

say goodbye to your life complacency has wrapped you inside her sheet you wish for something to come and save you but no one comes you must take care of yourself we all learn that
