it's such a long long way down from here push me up against the wall like your religion still we're close enough to ending up alone with our safety net beneath these bitter words no sense in reaching up for what we heard strong as you are you cannot hold back your sight your silence means much more than all of your movements softly whispering my name without a window laugh again and breathe me far away you were safer when i knew you as today

crash into the ocean
i know your devotion
crash into the ocean
and wait for the night

i could have guessed that you were wishing for a way out you can't seem to fall apart without an earthquake take my hand and i will show you how to break me open up your eyes and see the glare she is shining down with roses in her hair light me up like a devil, a monster lying in the grass beyond the line light me up like the china white powder falling from the sea into the sky light me up like a dimstore angel mary mother holding onto sight light me up i can hear your moonlight dancing
