There are days when my hope seems so distant
One thing then another falls at my feet
I can barely walk through all the trials ahead
And I don't feel that it will ever end somehow

I go forth wishing for an answer
If I listen hard enough I find it there
There's a path that forms for those willing to change
A tiny spark that can become a flame somehow
I can feel it now
I can feel it now

Underneath all the anger
There lies the answer
I can make it through
To do what I'm supposed to do
To come back to you

There's a path that forms for those willing to change
A tiny spark that can become a flame
There's a day that dawns when you can see through the night
A blindfold lifted to bring back sight somehow
I can feel it now
I can feel it now
