

Kareem Salama

"My Tears Aren't Pure"

Visit "My Tears Aren't Pure" on MotoLyrics.com

Same static on the television, but I just keep on watching Same stories coming out my mouth, but I just keep on talking

When will I learn there's no change 'till I change myself?

When I will send these demons back to hell?

Years have past since I had someone who'd listen to all of my dreaming

I've seen the backs of too many friends that quit believing

I guess there's a limit on how long most people can wait

For the time I kept on calling "One of these days"

Chorus: I'll spend my years if that's how it must be I'll dream the dreams that no one can believe I know I don't deserve what it is I'm asking for But I'll keep asking You forever more I'll keep hoping, even though my tears aren't pure Yes, I'll keep hoping even though my tears aren't pure

What's life worth living if I'm not living for great aspirations

What kind of love can I find if I'm falling for every temptation

I'm just not ready to settle down with the mundane I'll hold out my hands and wait for the rain

One foot in front of the other and I walk even though I move slowly

Some take the quick and the easy, but I'll take the steep and holy

They don't have to believe in what I do with my life
They're not the reason that I won't give up tonight

Chorus

Visit Kareem Salama page on MotoLyrics.com, to get more lyrics and videos.

