As you're disappearing I'm hearing
All I wanted you to say
I should focus more on the thought of Letting you just slip away

But I get this strange feeling
You're not revealing
Everything you wanted to say
So it's just a little harder
For me to play the part of
Watching you walk away

So before you disappear again
Just think of what you're feeling and don't go
There's more to what you're telling me
I'm not buying what you're selling me don't go

Don't you understand that I'm stranded
In a feeling I can't shake
Don't you realize that I'm frightened
Of all the things you're gonna take

And now you seem so distant
So much more resistant
To ever let the feeling show
So it's hard for me to face it
Even less replace it
Everything you're letting go

So before you disappear again
Just think of what you're feeling and don't go
There's more to what you're telling me
I'm not buying what you're selling me don't go
