I stand as I cry
Mourning in silent rain
Death will light my burden
Endless is my sorrow
The gateways so dark
All these years of dying

Gone are dreams of velvet voices
I am you, we were one
Vast are fields I walk
Where sorrow never dies

The sky unites with the blackened rain
Summon with my tears
Now descend on winter wings
My withering soul

Let me die
Die, die, die

Gateways of bereavement
A temple of guilt, falling deep
Embraced in grief, my withering soul
Let me die, die

Die, die
Die, die, die, die

Farewell life and all I died for
Now my time is over on earth
Another journey has begun
Alone I died, not praying for mercy
Nor praying for salvation

A lonely journey in a darkened dream
Time come to spread my wings
Slow, descending from a silent sky
Death comes to take me away
And from the gateways you hear me cry
I love you
