It sounded like a thousand hooves
Running 'cross the plains
It felt like an earthquake
When I first saw your face
You were standing like a rock
And suddenly I knew
From that moment on
I belonged to you

Like the sound of distant thunder
Your heart beats next to mine
With love strong enough to stand the test of time
And I will follow you no matter where you roam
I like a man like a buffalo
I like a man like a buffalo

Where have all the real men gone?
Did we run 'em off?
In searching for a better way
Did we just get lost?
When I look around these days
I thank the Lord for you
'Cause you're a field of open range
And I'm the sky of blue

Like the sound of distant thunder
Your heart beats next to mine
With love strong enough to stand the test of time
And I will follow you no matter where you roam
I like a man like a buffalo
I like a man like a buffalo

And I will follow you no matter where you roam
I like a man like a buffalo
I like a man like a buffalo
