

Catherine Britt"Thank God There Is A Train"

Visit "Thank God There Is A Train" on MotoLyrics.com

Maybe today I take that train
Far out west till I again feel sane
Raise some cain or drain my veins
Oh thank God there is a train

I see you standing there at the end of the line
The wind throwing your hair into your eyes
But I long to take that train to the other side

I always thought I'd go back there again
Raise some kids or bring life to an end
No matter what I do I never win

Maybe today I take that train
Far out west till I again feel sane
Raise some cain or drain my veins
Oh thank God there is a train

I'm feeling kinda rusty and I'm dry
Why does everything end in a fight
How come I'm always wrong, you're always right

The engineer says hey, it's the end of the line
If you can't pay the price, then you can't ride
I know you're waiting there and you'll look fine

Maybe today I take that train
Far out west till I again feel sane
Raise some cain or drain my veins
Oh thank God there is a train

Visit Catherine Britt page on MotoLyrics.com, to get more lyrics and videos.