Sinn, goddess of the moon, immortal of the immortals Supreme queen of darkness, blazing goddess of the moon

Looking beyond, the endless horizon, where darkness unites with infinity Where hate, embraces passion, where fate belongs to me

"The wind was dark until... then formed the light of the golden crown
As the blaze shines upon the oar, she wets her body in the water of the ocean"

The nocturnal eye, is crying, in darkness resounding, his howling
The trees are singing the calling, for Sinn, the forbidden goddess Sinn...

"She is dressed with her cloak, which moon-lights the earth
As she rides her strong horses to the sky Hail Sinn! Hail the goddess! Hail blazing queen!"

The howling of wolves, the winter in my soul, whispers of snakes sting my mind My passion for you is still alive, Oh! your passion...screams of pain

Sinn, goddess of the moon, immortal of the immortals
Supreme queen of darkness, hear my death-call

Mother of blasphemy, mother of unholy creatures
Let me offer you my soul in your deep-black arms

Coming to my embrace...
