"Where Are You Now"

As I awaken from a dream of you
Old letters and old pictures I rummage through
And as I wander through my wardrobe of memories
I suspect that you still care for me

And I wonder where, where are you now
Could we ever work it out somehow
Don't let our dreams fall through
'Cause I still care, I still care for you ... you

Well I still remember the games we would play
And when you would leave, I'd beg you to stay
And the clothes you wore, never matched your color green
But the clothes you wore never mattered much to me

And I wonder where, where are you now
Could we ever work it out somehow
Don't let our dreams fall through
'Cause I still care, I still care for you ... you

Now I'm daydreaming and wasting my time
You're walking through my mind
'Cause you're the only one I think of, my one and only love
It's not perfect you can see when my baby's not with me
I just miss your company

And I wonder where, where are you now
Could we ever work it out somehow
Don't let our dreams fall through
'Cause I still care, I still care for you ... you
