When on the mountaintops they have
On the mountaintops they have
And you will go to meet him
One day you will finally see
On the mountaintops they have
A secret keep
And when you go to meet him
I'll tell you to be nice
Because you will be meeting
Yes, you will be meeting him
Yes, you will be meeting him
Like a [---]
Agonizing
Heading out for the merry way on your own
Heavenly headache
At the end those things won't keep him
Needing sleep
I will sing a song now
And it will come
From all things rest,
Say
I sing it to the world
As if to hope you never go
Can you hear me?
You can hear me
Soft and gentle stallion
So loved to be given
Such a fine gift we are given
Such a fine gift to give
You are deftly waiting for it
Suppose to be mad
So streamlining, flowing
This is what you gave
To release your ruin
I told thee and you will sing by then
Let me say again
I will a sing a song
Knowing it will be loved
And where all things rest
Stay
All the good people
Aren't most vivid ones

In the frozen stretched out, ridden once
You wrote a book
And named it all of our friends names
It had a familiar sound
Class clown
Was blowing his genuine cover
I could have sworn it was gorgeous
Now, for now, for now
When on the mountaintops they have
On the mountaintops they have
On the mountaintops they have a secret keep
