Seen more than I'll ever witness
Forgotten more than I will ever know
You taught me all about this game called life
So far every word you said to me was right

The wrinkles on your face
Tells more than the time and place
The place where I wanna be right now
Tell me one more story
No, you told me one too many times
Before I have to hear this one more
One last time let's go

Seen more than I'll ever witness
Forgotten more than I will ever know
You taught me all about this game called life
So far every word you said to me was right

I see your otherside through your weathered body
Your life is haunting me

I see your laugh in your eyes
I see you look in the skies
For someone who's fought through everything
(I see your laugh in your eyes)
You don't remember my name
I can now see your fate
() you had around my neck

Seen more than I'll ever witness
Forgotten more than I will ever know
You taught me all about this game called life
So far every word you said to me was right

I see your otherside through your weathered body
Your life is haunting me
Your life is haunting me
