They gave you a corner room on the fifth floor
The city lights were like candy to a kid in the store
Like a king you'd lay in you're bed so statefully
So thankful they gave you a room with scenery
You always were so healthy, so full of life
So seeing you so helpless just didnt seem right
How you kept your head so high I'll never know
I guess you knew you had a better place to go
Now you've got a room with a view
A window to the world
You always had your sights set high
Now that you're gone
Your memory lives on
And I see you smiling in your mind
With angels as visitors passing by
Your room with a view
I'll always miss you
I'll always feel the loss
I have to remind myself that your better off
I have to believe even through these tears of mine
Wherever you are theres a sun that always shines
Now you've got a room with a view
A window to the world
You always had your sights set high
And now that you're gone
Your memory lives on
And I see you smiling in my mind
With angels as visitors passing by
Your room with a view
With angels as visitors passing by
Your room with a view
