I never knew how much I'd come to love you
I couldn't know how much I'd come to love you
I had no idea if I'd disappear from fear
Of the greatest gift I almost faded away

I had no idea how much I'd come to need you
I had no idea how much I'd burn when I can't see you
I had no idea if I'd disappear from fear
Of the greatest gift who's ever taken to me

But you pierced my heart in June
Turned and hung the moon
In a while, child
I was wrapped around your finger

Chance
What are the chances
That you would look down from the sky
And choose me to be your own
And Chance
What are the chances
That you would sacrifice your wings
To become flesh and bone
For me

I can't believe I called it love before you
I think I even thought I could ignore you
I had no idea if I'd disappear from fear
Those days were cold
And I almost faded away

But you changed the way I breathe
And rearrange of needs

To the world you might be one
But to me you are the world

Chance
What are the chances
That you would look down from the sky
And choose me to be your own
And Chance

What are the chances
That you would sacrifice your wings
To become flesh and bone
For me

La da da da

We're all searching for the things that make us matter
We're all hungry in our needing to be whole
Then we find the only thing that really matters
Are the people in our lives whose hearts we hold

Chance
What are the chances
That you would look down from the sky
And claim me to be your own
And Chance
What are the chances
That you would sacrifice your wings
To become flesh and bone
For me
