You keep saying this will kill me
You keep telling me I'm way too serious intense
While I'm swallowed in this suit of my self pity
Yeah well I can't admit it
But you might be right again

And I don't mind
When you simplify my situation at all
Just by telling me I'll be alright again
And I don't mind
When you sing so badly that it scares me
And you dance around like nobody's watching at all

At times you're completely inconvenient
It's like you consider twisting me some kind of sport
And then you say to me these things are not equipped
To handle no no no
Hate to admit it
But you might be right again

And I don't mind
When you simplify my situation at all
Just by telling me I'll be alright again
And I don't mind
When you sing so badly that it scares me
And you dance around like nobody's watching at all
At all

And I don't mind
When you simplify my situation at all
Just by telling me I'll be alright again
And I don't mind
When you sing so badly that it scares me
So come dance for me like nobody's watching at all
