Green green grass and blue blue skies
A child's game seen by a million eyes
A boyhood dream that came to life
Wasn't this meant for some other guy

A season comes and then a season goes
You're living high then you're living low
There was no easy come no easy go
And so began the change

Chorus

Now I'm back in the game
Oh it took a little while for me to find my way
No this ain't for the fame
I'm leaving that old self behind
And I'm back in the game

Cheering fans and an all-star game
I hold them dear but it's fleeting fame
Well planned schemes and well pitched games
Were leading some to know my name

The seasons comes and then the seasons go
You're living high then you're living low
There was no easy come no easy go
And so began the change
