Remember catching your eyes in between blinding lights,
Then we laughed our drunken states away.
As my lips found yours, I felt that wouldn't be the last.
I wish I'd met you in my past.

Sydney Harbour never looked so beautiful
As the night I found you there
You were there, yeah, yeah!

I'll push this piano to your house,
Sit outside your bedroom window.
I thought being alone would be better,
Then I wrote you this farewell letter.

I remember walking blind beneath the moonlit sky,
As the sun pulls the darkness far away.
As my fate sank in I felt this was not to last
Why weren't you in my past?

Sydney Harbour never looked so beautiful
As the night I found you there
You were there, yeah, yeah!

I'll push this piano to your house,
Sit outside your bedroom window.
I thought being alone would be better....

I was wondering whether you kept your cheap faded long stemmed rose...

I'm still here, yeah, yeah!

I'll push this piano to your house,
Sit outside your bedroom window.
I thought being alone would be better,
Then I wrote you this farewell letter.
