Tumbling through space
I didn't hear them call
I must have lost my sense of place
Nothing to break the fall

And while the world was turning on without me
Under my feet
All of the stars were burning infinitely
All around me

And no one could ever bring me down
Maybe I never understood
And nobody needs to save me now
As if they ever really could

I never felt so free
And never been so alone
Every thing's how it ought to be
Here in the great unknown

And while the world keeps turning on without me
Under my feet
All of the stars are burning infinitely
All around me

And no one could ever bring me down
Maybe I never understood
And nobody needs to save me now
As if they ever really could

And no one could ever bring me down
Maybe I never understood
And nobody needs to save me now
As if they ever really could

And no one could ever bring me down
Maybe I never understood
And nobody needs to save me now
As if they ever really could
