I'm going back

Across the sky

To places I have never been

But something seems to be

Slowly drawing me away

And that's what come what may

I'm going back

To places I have never seen

To feel the freedom

Of a sweet clear winter's golden day

Sunset stained with gold

A love that never grows cold

While you're the hand that I hold

I'll face my years to be

And we may find

That as the story is told

We'll watch the future unfold

Another side of me

I'm going back

Unless I'm sure

I need you more than ever now

And through the distance
We'll see things in another light
If we just raise our sights
And looking back
We'll understand it all somehow
Today forever and beyond
Together we will see
Another side of me
