

Celtic Frost "Jewel Throne"

Once prayed to my Gods, searching for the whistled memories

Empty eyes are staring now, to my feet a land of sorrow

I'm the king, sitting in the dark hiding from the shadows of the wind

Wafts of might, wine of fire, I was called to taste

Jewel throne

Silver horses brought us here, to the edge of the universe

We left the falling walls as the stars collapse began

Now I rest on the highest steps, revealed the eternal frontier

As I gaze from the jewel throne to the portal of infinity

Jewel throne

Fallen have, 'chosen ones', debris remain in the dust

Far behind, beyond the sands, wind sings to those who fell

Forever now, my hands laid down poisoned weapons

I will pray to my Gods, searching for mysteries
