When I look back on the things I've seen
The countless faces and the places I've been
I often wonder if it's come to an end
What kind of life is waiting round the bend

When I'm gone will anyone care?
Will all the things I cherish still be there?
Who bears the torch we must leave behind
Never ending questions filling my mind

I'm looking back
At the life I've had
Now looking ahead
I know I should be glad

The memories seem to fill my days
The future's lurking in a crowdy haze
I like to think it's all in my control
But this uncertainty is taking it's toll

I'm looking back
I'm looking back
I'm looking back
I'm looking back
I'm looking back
I'm looking back
