You bid my name, I crawl and take the blame your tears dry, leaving me only stains reminders where you laid your face... right next to mine, in our final embrace.

empty words fell from your lips falling away, you plead then betray

I'm bound in pain, my doom delivered To dead memories, a silent surrender the earth beneath our bed shifted light as shadow you were lifted you hid where I couldn't follow your voice sounded so hollow with the promise of a lonely eternity, I pledge myself to keep our memory.

and while the world burns to ash and cinder, with my dying breath, a prayer I send her, raising the flames of my funreal pyre... don't turn your back to me now, my ashen liar
