i took a ride on your fingertips heaven high with the thrill of it and in your eyes for a moment it's like we never said goodbye we took a walk for the hell of it and then we talked through the thick of it

and in your eyes for a moment

but sometimes went wrong you never came home and time takes so long what are these tears we're crying

'cos i remember the open roads met at the corner where no one goes and no one mattered at all and i remember the driving rain soaked to the skin these were perfect days and i remember it all friends is such a horrid word i sit at home with the things we learned you didn't phone and in a different world we'd have never said goodbye where are we going with feeling alone time takes so long and what are these tears we're crying

and as for then and as for now as for who and as for how there's just one thing i can't forget how beautiful you are.
