there are my specs
the ones I've been looking for I threw them out the window ten years ago and now they're on my doorstep so you put one and one together and there will be better weather and you know that it's forever now that he has custody with his son up on his shoulders they're a sight to behold

'cause the dad is twenty eight even though he looks seventeen

so you'll never guess the woes that they have known cause they don't show and in a couple years they've grown into a perfect family

I'm so proud my brother did so good with his kid I just wish that I could live with the fishes I love in their anemone

but I'm a turtle it wont work I've gotta stay out in the current with my house upon my back so I can hide inside of me all together in the tank you always dreamed about escaping

when you finally make a break for it you deserve to be free

to be free

there are my spectacles
the one's I've been looking for I threw them out my window ten years ago
and now they're on my doorstep that's how it happened the confusion at the store the shark never knew his father and the baby never knew his mother board
