You've got a smile that knows how, and the ones you always know are falling around now. If you need him here to say to tell you everything's OK then nothings going to be alright, if you need him here that way. And if I could just interject, it might not make much sense, you've got a smile an embarrassed frownand I give it at my best. If you need him here to say that everything's ok than I'm just not sure that everything's ok and you wanna know what went down just read it in the papers. straighten up shoulders up.
