as I wandered...walked along on a lazy path I shook and hand. he seemed to know so much more so I listened...tried my best just to understand then I followed to where I knew nothing of.
over the hill, come see the thrill awaiting you go thru the door, there's so much more walk in the big parade, learn just what to say they will all try to fool you don't believe anything, I'm your everything
and don't ever think you'll see another friend. time went on, we were friends of a different kind but something there always tearing apart standing tall on a surgace of glass and rain we traveled on with a hope and a prayer
over the hill, come see the thrill awaiting you
walk in the big... and don't ever think you'll find a better friend
walk in the big...
and don't ever think that I could do you wrong
