

Kinks

"A Rock 'n' Roll Fantasy"

Visit "A Rock 'n' Roll Fantasy" on MotoLyrics.com

Hello you, hello me, hello people we used to be Isn't it strange, we never changed
We've been through it all yet we're still the same
And I know it's a miracle we still go
Before you go, there's something you ought to know

There's a guy in my block, he lives for rock
He plays records day and night
And when he feels down, he puts some rock 'n' roll on
And it makes him feel alright
And when he feels the world is closing in
He turns his stereo way up high

He just spends his life livin' in a rock 'n' roll fantasy
He just spends his life livin' on the edge of reality
He just spends his life in a rock 'n' roll fantasy
He just spends his life livin' in a rock 'n' roll fantasy
He just spends his life livin' in a rock 'n' roll fantasy

Look at me, look at you, you say you've got nothing left to prove
The King is dead, rock is done
You might be through but I've just begun
I don't know, I feel free and I won't let go
Before you go, there's something you ought to know

Dan is a fan and he lives for our music
It's the only thing that gets him by He's watched us grow and he's seen all our shows
He's seen us low and he's seen us high
Oh, but you and me keep thinking
That the world's just passing us by

Don't want to spend my life livin' in a rock 'n' roll
fantasy
Don't want to spend my life livin' on the edge of reality
Don't want to waste my life hidin' away anymore
Don't want to spend my life livin' in a rock 'n' roll
fantasy

Visit Kinks page on MotoLyrics.com, to get more lyrics and videos.
